

Mini-paper submission instructions

Main submission instructions

The deadline for submission is week 6 (as stated in the original task instructions and repeated at the start of week 4's lesson).

- Print two (2) identical copies of your mini-paper and bring them to your week 6 lesson. These do not need to be printed in colour.
- Additionally, submit an identical electronic copy to the mini-paper submission area on the Week 6 Blackboard page. Please upload a file copy (.docx or .pdf) rather than copying and pasting your work into the submission box. The name of your uploaded file should contain your name and your student number.

Can you submit an electronic copy only/paper copies only?

No. You will not count as having submitted your mini-paper until I receive your two paper copies and one electronic copy.

Grade deduction

Grade deduction may be applied for anything that causes me to have to waste my time correcting your error (e.g. failure to submit all copies on time, failure to submit the correct number of copies, failure to name the uploaded file properly).

Slightly late submission deadline: Sunday 30th March, midday

Slightly late submission is acceptable without grade deduction. If you cannot bring your mini-paper to your week 6 lesson, you can instead submit it to my mailbox outside the CLE (the location of the CLE is detailed in week 1's PPT). The deadline for this slightly late submission to my CLE mailbox is midday on Sunday 30th March.

Please note that if you submit to my CLE mailbox, this is at your own risk. For students who submit their mini-paper in their week 6 class, I will carefully record their submission at the moment they make it, and if I later cannot find their paper, I will know this is my own fault. If you submit your paper to my mailbox instead, I obviously cannot make a record of this, so if I cannot find your mini-paper when I empty my mailbox, I will assume this is because you did not put it in there.

Deadline extensions for mitigating circumstances

Extension to the deadline is of course available in the case of e.g. serious and protracted illness. You will need to contact me by email to negotiate an extension and provide credible evidence to show that it was impossible for you to meet the deadline due to circumstances beyond your control. (For the avoidance of doubt, a picture of a thermometer or pack of medicine is not credible evidence.)

What happens to the two printed copies?

One copy, I will grade according to the grading criteria document on Blackboard, which considers a limited range of factors mostly relating to the structure of the introduction. This grade will form 20% of your final grade for this course.

One copy, I will annotate to highlight problems with style, grammar, etc. I will give this copy back to you in week 8, and in weeks 8-15 we will work on editing it to help you improve your writing style. This copy will not contribute to your final course grade (except indirectly as useful practice for the skills tested in the final exam).

Resubmission and make-up tasks

There will be no opportunity to resubmit and no make-up tasks. The grade you get for your mini-paper is the grade you get for your mini-paper.
